Frederick Yahrling Dead.

The flags on the custom house were at half mast vesterday on account of the death of Frederick Yahrling, aged seventy-four, a clerk in the internal revenue office. He was a well known old German resident, respected by all who knew him, and his death will cause sincere mourning in a wide circle. He was the father of Fred J. Yahrling, and had several other sons. The time for the funeral has not yet been ar-

Thieves at Potomac.

The store of H. L. McCammon, at Potomac, was robbed Wednesday night. Thieves broke into the blacksmith shop adjoining the store, and pried open the door of the store with some tools they found in the shop. Ten dollars in cash and about $25 worth of groceries were stolen. It is supposed that two strangers who were seen coming toward Potomac at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon committed the robbery.

Nearly a Bad Collision.

Nearly a Bad Collision.

About half-past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon an electric ar came down the Main street grade at a pretty lively speed, and the track was so wet the operator was unable to check it. At the corner of Twelfth street it collided with a heavy warm belonging to S. Bandon a heavy wagon belonging to S. Baer's Sons, and the hub of one of the wagon wheels crashed clear through the front of the operator's box. Fortunately nobody was hurt, and the only damage done was the breaking in of the front of the mater. the motor.

The Art Sale.

The Art Sale.

The fine gallery of paintings on Market street has been attracting considerable attention in the past week, a number of well known connoisseurs in this city having bought a good many of the choice productions. There still remains a number of excellent productions, away above the average paintings exhibited in famous galleries, all of which come in for their full share of admiration for their skillful and true tone. A number of landscapes, some rich in color and good atmospheres, and others charming in their simplicity and naturalness, all of them being painted with much skill and fidelity to nature. These will be offered at excellent bargains during the coming week. All the pictures are to be disposed off.

The Masonic Temple. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sin:-The mass meeting of Masons to Sin:—The mass meeting of Masons to be held this evening in the assembly room of the Odd Fellows Hall building promises to be well attended.

While for perhaps good and sufficient reasons our ancient brethren debarred women from being made Masons, and this ungallant exclusion is made one of the landmarks of Masonry, not to be departed from, yet that eminent patron of Masonry, our first most excellent grand master, did not hesitate to accept the gold and jewels of Shebn's queen and to use them in the work of building the temple in Jerusalem. With this illustrious example before them the committee on programme and invitation include the wives, daughters and lady friends of the brethren in their invitations and expect the presence of many ladies at the meeting. While is it not expected that any lady will contribute pecuniarily, yet their influence will aid materially the efforts of the association in the work before it.

THE BIG SHOW CROWDED

In Spite of a Little Spell of Weather Yesterday.

THE BEST OF THEM SEEN HERE YET

A Few Little Drawbacks Merely Serve to Emphasize the Drawing Powers of "the Greatest Show on Earth"--- The Town Full of Country People and Some Other People ... A Memorable Day in the Annals of Local Amusement Events.

HE drawing power of the Barnum and Bailey circus, with good reason surnamed "the greatest show on earth," has always been recognized and admitted, fully as much by rivals as by admirers. There never was a more forcible demonstration of its hold on the public than was afforded here yesterday. Any ordinary show might as well have taken down its tents and "mosted on" to the next town in the face of such a day. Everything from the signal flag over Schnepi's drugstore to the feeling of the atmosphere prophesied a storm. More than that, the storm, came. If it had not threatened or had not came, it is hard to conjecture what the managers would threatened or had not came, it is hard to conjecture what the managers would have dono with the crowd, for as it was, the huge tent, by far the biggest ever put up in Wheeling, was packed in the afternoon and well filled at night.

This visit of the Barnum-Bailey aggregation marked a new era in Wheeling. It was the first show to pitch its tents on the State fair grounds, and the full tent was for the first time put up here. Heretofore this has not been possible, owing to the lack of room. It was stated that there were 10,000 people under the canvas in the afternoon, and about 7,000 last night. It was the first circus since the new bridges were built, and brought another innovation, unloading and loading at Ætnaville, and the parade coming over the new steel bridge.

unloading and loading at Etnaville, and the parade coming over the new steel bridge.

There were more people in town than usual. The fact is, Wheeling is a better show town than eyer before. The extension of the electric railway, the completion of the Terminal system and the entrance of the Wheeling & Lake Eric into the city make it possible toincrease former crowds at least fifty per cent, beside which the city has grown so as to make a perceptible addition to the ranks of circus patrons. If there is any attraction in the world which would develop all these new means of reaching Wheeling and put them to the test to carry the people into town, it is the Barnum & Bailey shows.

About the time the main tent began

About the time the main tent began to fill up vesterday afternoon the storm, which had been giving specimens of its ability all day, concluded a permanent engagement, and began to blow. The tent swelled up and then rose in the air, flapped about a little and settled back. The heavy poles were jerked around like jack straws, and the stakes, driven five feet in the earth, were pulled out and sent sailing skyward.

Marvelous as it may seem, nobody About the time the main tent began out and sent sailing skyward.

Marvelous as it may seem, nobody was gravely hurt, and in ten minutes the tent was back in place and the crowd, with an addition of outsiders who watched their chance and sneaked under the flying canvass, was enjoying the performance as if nothing had happened. Last night all the bad effects noted were a few sents in the cancer. noted were a few rents in the canvass, and the ground rent would cover all

As to the performance, it is the most

As to the performance, it is the most novel and the best ever seen. It is too stupendous to be thoroughly enjoyed. One sits in a daze while it lasts, and after it is over it is like a confused dream, but a beautiful dream.

The Columbus spectacle deserves all the words of praise that have been spoken of it. Though it had to given without the scenery, it was great. All the horses are the best, all the performers ahead of any seen here before. Among the novelties are the wonderful Arabs, the new aerial acts, performing cats and performing sheep. The cats alone are a show worthy the patronage of thousands. In short, tengood big shows could be made up of the features seen in the five big rings. At times eight performances went on, At times eight performances went on, all rarely meritorious.

Mr. Bailey has eclipsed everything the amusement world ever saw before. What will he do next?

SAWDUST FROM THE RING.

Some of the Little Things worthy of Comment at the Circus.

The menagerie was the best in all respects ever seen here.

For the first time perhaps in seven centuries everybody seemed to agree that it was a good parade. Fully four hundred people beat their way in yesterday after the wind storm, by claiming to have been in before.

The schools were demoralized. In one South Side room only three pupils showed up, and they were excused.

A large number of people were lost or separated from their friends, in the rush to get out, during the wind storm.

The Wheeling Press Club rooms, in the Reilly block, were popular with those who wanted a good point of view for the parade.

It was funny to see how the woman who did the illusion acts in the menageric tent recovered their missing members and scrambled out in the excitement.

Several women lost their pocketbooks during the rush. The police say their pockets were not picked, as no man can locate a woman's pocket, no matter how expert he is.

Mr. David Lowe, the popular night clerk in Mosgrove's Hotel at Steuben-ville, had his foot hurt and his ankle sprained at the circus. Another man from this city met with a similar acci-One canvasman remarked that he had been working a year chasing people away from the tent, to prevent their crawling in, but yesterday, for the first time, he was chased away himself by people crawling out. A well known clarivoyant of this city lost her gold watch during the afternoon performance, and informed one of the police standing near, who facetiously replied: ""You should use your second sight and locate it, and I'll do the rest." Paste This in Your lint.
